The Earl of Rosebery.

London Letter to the New York Tribune.

He has been spending Christmas quietly it Mentmore, the dower house Miss at Mentmore, the dower house Miss Hannah Rothschild brought him. Soon after the funeral of his wife Lord Rosebery, feeling desirous of getting away for a time from scenes and associations that too poignantly recalled his great loss, contemplated a long journey in foreign parts making first for the West Indies, and thence to South America. But after a while he decided at least to postpone the journey and whilst his house in Berkeley Square has remained open so that he might run up to town when business called or fancy bade him, he has dwelt at Mentmore with all his pretty chicks about him.

It is certain that he will remain in retirement through the coming year, a necessity that will impose a distinct loss upon the public service and the amenities of political life. But Lord Rosebery will not be a sufferer, nor will it eventually be all loss to the world. He is just the man to derive benefit out of a period of adversity and a term of enforced leisure. Nothling is more remarkable in his career than the proof is aftords of the possibilities of growth in his character. He is still magtificently young, and the only limit to his advance to the highest position in the State is the fact of his peerage. It is certain that he will remain in re-

"Sunlight and Shadow." When the spirit of a play is swest and gentle it is extremely apt to be insipid but the spirit of this new comedy, "Similght and Shadow!—which had its first American representation last night before a large and bright company of appreciative people in the Madison Square Theatre—is no less piquant than lovely and no less forcible and touching than sample and pure. In this respect the piece is exceptional, and since its tender and beautiful ideal of nobleness in character and integrity in conduct is invested with cheerful accessories and expressed by neaf expedients of dramatic mechanism, and in a terse, buoyant, and spirited strain of dialogue, it surely may be halled and welcomed among the most ampicious productions of the hour.

In looking at this piece the observer looks upon truthful scenes of domestic life, which are made romantic with the halo of love. There is love thwarted and there is love fulfilled, but in each vein of destiny the love is pure. Nothing could be simpler than the story. Not even an attempt at invention has been made in this particular. The entire stress of art has been laid upon a dramatic exposition of the persons and the circumstances which are to be displayed.

London Indifferent to America.

London Indifferent to America. Blakely Hall writes that the desire to play in London invariably takes possesplay in London invariably takes possession of the American actor after he has achieved a certain degree of success on this side of the water, and theatrical managers seem mable to realize that the London public has practically no interest whatever in America. The editor of one of the most important and successful newspapers in England told me once that the English people did not care any more for American affairs than New Yorkers cared for distinctively New Zealand topics.

"There are not 100 people in New York," he said, "who feel any personal interest in New Zealand affairs, and the majority of folks there do not know whether the island is under one-political party or another. That is exactly the way that the London public in general regards American subjects and American politics. We do not publish American news because Londoners have no interest in it, and the theatres do not produce American plays for the same reason."

OWENBY IS MAD.

HE PROPOSES TO SUE THOSE WHO CAUSED HIS ARREST.

The Officers of the House Will Also Be Sued for Permitting Him to Be Arrested While Under the Protection of Congress-Re Returns to Chicago.

Owenby, the silver-pool witness, has en having a rather hard time of it for the past few days, but he now proposes to have some fun on his own account. He left for Chicago this morning after is release from arrest, caused by Senate lestaurant-keeper Page. Having been paid mileage by the Gov ernment to return to the place where he was taken in custody by the officers of the House of Representatives, Owenby on advice of counsel, will return there His arrest at the Capitol will thus be made an unwarranted interference with a wit-ness entitled to the protection of Congress and technically under its direction and and technically under its direction and control.

Before leaving Owenby declared he would bring suit for damages against Page for illegal arrest, on a warrant that was on its face a trumped-up falsehood to bring discredit upon him as a witness, and he will also bring n suit against the officers of the House for permitting him to be locked up in a District fail.

As Owenby puts it, the whole power of 63,000,000 people was put in motion to bring him from Chicago to collect an alleged debt to a pic man, and he proposes to see whether an American citizen can be kidnapped in the National Capital on such a pretext. Owenby will bring suit in Chicago, where he says he can have fair play.

WILLIAM HENRY HATCH

A Likely Dark Horse for the Demo "It seems strange to me," said an East-ern Democratic Congressman, "that only three names-Cleveland, Hill and Gorman-are mentioned in connection with he Democratic nomination for President man—are mentioned in connection with the Democratic nomination for President in 1892 when there is so much good timber in our party. Only once since the war has there been such a condition of affairs, and that was in 1883, when the St.

Louis Convention was called to ratify the nomination of Grover Cleveland, whom the people had practically selected long before the delegates to that convention had been elected.

"In this connection I want to make a prediction. The convention in 1892 will not in any sense be a ratification meeting.
There will be several strong candidates in the field. The nomination will not be made on the first ballot, as was the case in 1888. There will be several favorite sons balloted for, and it would not surprise me if some dark horse should slip under the wire and leave Brothers Cleveland, Hill and Gorman somewhere in the vicinity of the last quarter-stretch."

"Who is a likely dark horse?" asked The Certre reporter.

"Congressman William Henry Hatch of Hannibal, Mo., is, in my opinion, just as likely to walk off with the nomination as any one clse. Hatch is a safe and practical man with broad ideas, as honest as the days are long. He is the only man in public life who would be thoroughly accepted by the prest mass of the Varmers' Affiance. Although I am an Eastern man, I want to see the Democratic party mominate their strongest man. That man is William Henry Hatch."

The boys at home are not the only ones who are doing the kicking. Right here at the National Capital—in the Capitol Building, indeed—can be heard mamblings of dissatisfaction with the action of the two amiable old gentlemen who boss the polities of Massachusetts.

Members of the Massachusetts delegation are denouncing their Senators, and some predict that if Corse is reappointed it will make the State Democratic in '92.

A Massachusetts Republican said to Tim Chirte reporter to-day: ''If Corse is reappointed I am in favor of letting the Democrats run the State in the future. I had hoped that we would be able next year to pit some such man as Congressman Morse or Walker against Governor Russell and redeem the old Commonwealth, but there is no use attempting such a thing if the Federal offices are to be handed over to the Democrats.'

Anny Orders,—Major Calvin De Witt Secretary Blaine's Purchase.

Secretary Blaine yesterday purchased the remedeled house, No. 17 Madison Place, which he has occupied for the past two years. The price paid was $85,000 and the sale was made through Thomas J. Fisher & Co. Several years ago Mr. Blaine leased the house for a term of years with the privilege of buying it at any time for $65,000. Since he has secrepted it he has spent about $17,000 in improving it, and has made it a comfortable, commodicuts dwelling. The price paid is considered small, for while it was a fair valuation at the time the lease was made, the property has rapidly increased in value, and with the improvements which Mr. Blaine has made is now worth nearly, if not quite, $100,000.

An lowa judge has made a wise decision.

An ingenious youth of that State tied a thread to a nickel, dropped the nickel in a slot machine, got what he wanted, then, withdrawing the nickel by the thread, repeated the operation until he had made a clean sweep of the receptacle's contents. He was arrested on the charge of their, but the judge who tried him held that he had committed neither burglary, larceny mor robbery, nor either obtained property under false pretenses. He had merely done what the inscription on the machine told him to do—dropped a nickel in the slot—and had kept on doing it. Nothing was said about leaving the coin where it was dropped. This decision will probably abate a nuisance. Preparing for the Kennel Show The coming bench show promises to be one of the best ever held. A FRANTIC MADMAN.

Snakes, Dragons and Lizards Parsned Blas. Philaparagua, Feb. 5.—A hatless, wild-eyed young giant suffering from an acute attack of deliction termina furnished wild exattack of delivious tremens furnished wild excitement for thousands of pedestrians on Chestmu street shortly after 0 of dock last night. Who he is and where he came from nobody seems to know. He was first noticed standing on the corner of Chestnut and Sixth streets waving his arms and screaming. He was such a sturdy-looking fellow that no one cared to interfere, and he started up toward Seventh street. When about midway of the block he yelled and made a wild clutch at agreen, slimy snake that was entwined in his tangled hair and was dangling against his neck. A moment later he dodged around a telegraph pole to escape a double-headed dragon that was clawing at him and spitting lire.

He walked a few steps further and then darted across the street, holly oursied by a drove of hungry lizards with long forked tongues. The hizards chased the yelling victim up to Seventh street, where Policeman Walls was standing. The officer took in the state of affairs at once, and briefly explained the situation in a sentence: "He's got rams."

Officer Patterson was summoned from the opposite corner, and the two stalwart peace guardians moved down on the madman, who was standing in the centre of the street-car track doing battle with a monster snake. He fought the policemen with the energy and desperation of a cornered tiger, and it took fully half an hour to get him to the patrol box at the corner of Seventh and Sansom streets. The united efforts of six men were needed to get the unknown into the patrol wagon, where he was strapped down and taken at once to the insane department at Block-ley. citement for thousands of pedestrians on

AN INCORRIGIBLE BOY.

Fairy Tales to the Police.
Philadelphia, Feb. 5.—A travel-stained and weary-looking lad of 16 appeared at the Newark police headquarters on Tuesday night and told to Chief of Police the Newark police headquarters on Tuesday night and told to Chief of Police Hopper a highly sensational story.

He said his name was Samuel De Wolfe and that his parents lived in this city at 2033 Sargent street. He claimed that he had been attacked on Monday night at Richmond avenue, where he had gone to deliver a note, by a gang of trainps, who beat him and then compelled him to accompany them to Trenton. Thence they proceeded to Newark, where he was sent out to beg, and he said that he had immediately hastened to police headquarters. He asked to be sent home, but Chief Hopper decided to investigate the case, and so held him.

The boy's mother was seen last night at the address given by him, 2073 Sargent street, and said that the lad was her son and that her younger son, Mitchell, was also missing. Samnel, she said; was utterly incorrigible and had been in the House of Correction on two occasions without any salutary effect being apparent. Neither she nor the boy's father credits the story which he told to Chief Hopper, but believe that Samuel enticed his younger brother to leave home with him and then deserted him, but, becoming homesick, went to the police and told his pittable story in order to be sent home, as he was without funds. They are greatly worried over the younger son's disappearance and have placed the matter in Chief of Detective Wood's hands.

Stable Blaze, Bostox, Feb. 5.—Hogelow & Bernstein's stable, in the rear of 185 and 187 Hanover street, was burned this morning, together with sixty-five horses, four herdics, and a large amount of hay, grain, etc. The total lass is between $20,000 and $25,000. There are rumors of incendiarism.

Choral Society Concert.

The second concert of the Choral So-ciety had a large audience at Lincoln cult score of the evening. Mackenzie's attractive setting of the familiar stanzas of Burns.' "Cotter's Saturday Night," was the opening number, this being its first rendition in America. Mr. William Lavin, the tenor soloist, scored a triumph, and the female chorus "Into the Silent Land," music of Arthur Foote, was well sung. Miss Maud Howe, who has made Land. Miss Maul Howe, who has made such an excellent reputation here, sang with her usual exquisite sweetness.

The third concert of the society is announced for April 22, when Dvorak's "Spectre Bride" will be presented with the famous artists Clemenfine de Vere, soprano, and William Ludwig, baritone, as soloists.

The committee presented resolutions calling for the unlimited coinage of gold and silver, and expressed regret that this duty has been so long neglected; that this delay has been occasioned by an undue influence in our governmental politics by those whose interest it is to contrast the currency and subserve monopolies and moncy-lenders. "Pete" Baker as Bismarck

Last evening Mr. P. F. Baker closed a most successful three nights' season of This afternoon he introduced "Bismarck," which will remain the attraction for the rest of the week. It is a very choice piece of German comedy, and one which gives Mr. Baker's peculiarly refined methods and exceptional vocal talents ample scope. It has been a favorite everywhere, meeting with a hearty approval seldom accorded a new play. It is quaint in its conception, sparkling in dialogue and ingenious in its shuntions. Mr. Baker's songs are always attractive, and he intersperses "Bismarck" with some especially bright gems of molody. The company also has excellent opportunity to display its many points of excellence. "Bismarck" is a German actor, and during the impressmation Mr. Baker assumes the dispuises of Housest and a Typoler.

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 5.—The Governo received a letter yesterday from the citi received a letter yesterialy from the cit-zens of Fosston, Polk County, stating that the Indians were still dancing and beast-ing that in a few weeks there would not be a white man left alive in the thirteen towns near the Red Lake reservation. The writer said that the settlers are abandon-ing their farms and stock and asked that a couple of companies of militia be sent up there to aid the settlers in case of an outbreak. CRAZED BY DISGRACE.

The Pather of Albert Ivins Made Insane by Grief.

Mount Holly, Feb. 5.—A sad sequel to the suicide of young Albert Ivins, of Beverly, has just been made public. His aged erly, has just been made public. His aged father is now conlined in an asylum, his reason having fled from brooding over his terrible affliction. Young Ivine was only nineteen years old, and was the light of his father is home. He had no bad habits so far as known, but when yesterday a hump-backed, hideous woman of the neighborhood appeared before him and charged that the young man was the father of her unborn child, the old man's heart broke and he went mad.

This woman is a pauper and subsisted upon charity of the neighborhood, and much indignation is expressed against the young man just at this time. She was prepared for this, however, and produced averal letters written to her by Albert Ivins, inclosing money to pay for her silence. She has been sent to the Almshouse. The deepest sympathy is expressed for Mr. Ivins, as it is believed that he incurrably insane.

A CREW'S NARROW ESCAPE.

Morgan of Gloucester was driven ashore at Cow Bay, East Halifax, and became a total wreck, the crew barely escaping with their lives. The Senator Morgan sailed from Fortune Bay, N. F., last Saturday for Gloucester with a full carge of frozen herring. She struck at 10 o'clock. The sea was breaking fiercely all around, and the crew did not know where they were. To try to land in dories meant death, so they started a fire on deck by burning their bed clothes to attract the attention of those on shore, which they finally succeeded in doing.

When Captain Graham discovered men on the beach he threw a tub into the water containing a light line, with the hope that it would be carried ashore. The breakers swept it in toward land, and when it got near enough a dog swam out and secured it. By the aid of the line a hawser was hauled ashore and secured. Then the crew, eight in number, had to scramble ashore hand over hand, being dashed about in the heavy waves and often finding it as much as they could do to retain their hold.

One man, the cook, was so exhausted that he was drowned. It took two hours to rescue the men from their perilous positions, and they suffered extremely from cold and wet. All the people in the houses near the water were in bed when the schooner went ashore and did not see the distress signals, and but for the fortunate circumstance of two men being on the road the crew would have being on the road the c

LONG TRANCE IN A FREIGHT. Daniel Brew, a Danbury Hatter, Writes

of an Odd Experience.

Danmery, Conn., Feb. 5.—The yarn that s spun in a letter written from Michigan City, Ind., to his friends in this city by City, Ind., to his friends in this city by Daniel J. Brew, formerly a prosperous young hat manufacturer of this city, would be laughed at as an extravagant "fake" if it came from a man less reputable. Brew has been missed by his Danbury Iriends since December 6, when he got a $600 check cashed and vanished. Believing him to be dead, they sold out his property and settled with his creditors. Now they are informed in the letter from the supposed dead man that he was knocked senseless on that day, after he got the check cashed, and that he knew nothing further of what happened until two weeks afterward, when he was taken half starved from a freight car at Houston, Tex., since which time he has been working for wages.

MORE MOLLIE MAGUIRE NOTES.

A Quartette of Letters Decorated With GIRARDVILLE, PA., Feb. 5 .- Thomas Evans, inside foreman of the Reading's mines at this place, and Richard Stack, #r., Richard Stack, jr., and Albert Kelto, all Richard Stack, jr., and Albert Kelto, all of this place, have received Mollie Maguire letters notifying them to leave town within fifteen days in order to save their lives. Each letter was adorned with the skull, cross-bones and coffin, and that received by Mr. Evans was also spotted with blood. The recipients, who are mine-workers and have done nothing that they think would warrant such letters, say they hardly know whether they are jesting or in carnest: but, in any event, they are not afraid, though the letters have been turned over to officers.

FLASHED UNDER THE SEA.

A BURGET OF NEWS AND GOSSIP FROM ABROAD.

Emperor William's Remarks About "The Next War" Regarded as Significant-Parnell Receives Ample Funds for the Use of the Irish Party-Destitu-

London, Feb. 5.—A Berlin dispatch says that the Kaiser's remark about "the next war," in appointing Count Waldersee to the command of the Ninth Army Corps, has arroused much gossip in court and army circles, being in contradiction of nearly all that the Emperor has professed to believe as to the assurances of European peace. The Kaiser continues to devote himself with almost feverish earnestness to army matters. He has decided not to promote Count Hasseler of Metz to the place vacated by Waldersee. Hasseler is looked upon by many as the most promising of German commanders, and he resembles Moltke to a remarkable Hasseler is looked upon by many as the most promising of German commanders, and he resembles Moltke to a remarkable degree, both in military genius and habits. The Kaiser, however, does not care to have near him any general whose ability would receive credit for military success, as the Kaiser wants all such credit himself, and means, it is said, to have no rival in the leadership.

With the McCarthy wing of the Irish Parliamentary party the accuse question is not so much political as financial. Eleven of those who side with the majority depend upon stated stipends for support. Some of them are badly in need of money, and the hat has been passed around in their behalf among their more fortunate colleagues. As for the League funds that are locked up the Parnellites will not consent to these being used except for evicted tenants.

Parnell receives funds from some source to keep him and his party going and it is intimated that Mrs. O'Shea is proving herself a friend in need both to Parnell and his parliamentary supporters. At any rate there is no sign of financial stringency among the Parnellites. To make matters worse for the majority Parnell hinted an intention to visit America on a collecting tour and thus cut off the chief source of future supplies. This condition of affairs has had a good deal to do with the proposed adjustment of differences.

Charitable committees for the relief of the awful destitution in London are going about their business in rather a peculiar fashion. After an investigation of various cares of alleged poverty, the impulry in each case being trolongeds as to give the victim a fair chance to die of starvation, relief was at length distributed. But for fear that too much benevolence might be followed by disastrous results, the relief was carefully regulated, bread being distributed the first day, then soup the next day and coal the third day. Why the articles could not all have been given the first day is not explained. At a large meeting of unemployed laborers on Tower Hill a speaker dec
